

Prachi Soni '13S (MBA)

Prachi is currently a senior manager with Deloitte's Innovation team acting as a strategist to help clients and Deloitte stay ahead of change, deliver impact that matters, and transform complexity and disruption into lasting value. Most of her recent efforts have been focused on transforming what the businesses offer, and how those offerings are delivered, across Deloitte's four functional businesses: Audit, Tax, Consulting, and Advisory.

Prior to joining the Innovation team, Prachi worked in Deloitte's consulting practice focused on health and human services. She helped clients identify pain points and current state challenges and enabled them to reimagine how the future state of their business could look. She led teams to successfully transition from legacy systems to new age technology platforms. Prachi is known on her team to be a driver and an integrator.

Mikayla Hart '16S (MBA)

Mikayla leads corporate strategies at the intersection of sustainability and profitability, proving that what's good for society is good for business.

As a managing director in Accenture's Strategy Consulting group, Mikayla co-leads the Sustainability Strategy practice in North America. She helps organizations achieve value and impact by building corporate strategies to serve all stakeholders—from investors and employees to customers and broader society. Her focus in this field includes ESG (environmental, social, governance) strategies, sustainable operating models, circular economy and waste reduction, ESG data and value cases, sustainable development and reduced inequality, impact investing, and financial inclusion.

In addition to her work with Accenture, Mikayla also serves on the Board of Climate Action Pathways for Schools, a nonprofit that creates education opportunities for local school districts in under-resourced communities, while developing projects that reduce their greenhouse gas emissions and save money for the school district.

Prior to sustainability consulting, Mikayla's background was in mergers and acquisitions, corporate finance, and venture capital. She has worked across the M&A life cycle, including due diligence, divestiture planning, and integration planning.

Mikayla received an MBA from the University of Rochester's Simon Business School with Beta Gamma Sigma, the Dean's Leadership Award, and Poets & Quants' "Best and Brightest MBAs" award, as well as a BBA from the University of Hawaii in finance and international business.

Originally from Hawaii, Mikayla has lived and worked throughout the US and Europe, and she currently resides in San Diego, California.
